

CHESAPEAKE GROVE INTERGENERATIONAL CENTER

CAMBRIDGE, MARYLAND

Gillis Gilkerson principals are proud to announce the completion of a remarkable addition to the landscape of Cambridge, the Chesapeake Grove Intergenerational Center. The +/- 42,637 SF, two story Chesapeake Grove Intergenerational Center embodies the concept of interconnectivity across generations. Designed to foster learning, interaction, and collaboration, the center features an array of purpose-driven spaces. From spacious classrooms to an inviting community room, adult and child day care facilities, and a cozy café, the center encompasses a diverse range of functionalities - all harmoniously united under the expansive canopy of a light-infused atrium.

The project was marked by the meticulous planning and dedication of Project Manager Matt Esham and Superintendent Robert Meilhammer. Their expertise guided the construction process from its ground-up beginnings to the grand unveiling. With unwavering attention to detail, they ensured that every stone veneer, wood timber truss, and standing seam metal roofing was seamlessly integrated into the architectural tapestry.

“Being a part of the Chesapeake Grove Intergenerational Center project was truly a rewarding experience for our team at Gillis Gilkerson Construction. The beauty of the building is only matched by the profound impact it will have on the community.” said Dwight Miller, Executive Consultant, Gillis Gilkerson. “This center stands as a testament to our dedication to both craftsmanship and community, and we are incredibly proud to have been a part of bringing this vision to life.”

The Chesapeake Grove Intergenerational Center serves as a bridge that connects generations, offering a safe and enriching environment for both adults and children. The wrap-around ramp symbolizes inclusivity, enabling seamless access for everyone. One of the most remarkable features is the atrium - a central hub where natural light pours in, illuminating the shared spaces and energizing the surroundings. This infusion of light mirrors the project’s ethos of growth, learning, and renewal.

Beyond the bricks and mortar, the Chesapeake Grove Intergenerational Center symbolizes Gillis Gilkerson Construction’s commitment to community development. Its completion not only marks a construction milestone but also contributes significantly to the cultural fabric of Cambridge. This center, with its rich tapestry of spaces and services, promises to empower generations to come, fostering connections that span the breadth of life itself.
