

RICHARD A. HENSON FAMILY YMCA

SALISBURY, MARYLAND

YMCA of the Chesapeake hired Gillis Gilkerson as construction manager for their three phase, 44,000 square foot renovation project at the Richard A. Henson Family YMCA in Salisbury, Maryland.

Phase I saw major layout changes to the health and wellness center, including the installation of new sports flooring, state-of-the-art internet wired fitness equipment, new restrooms, a basketball center and group cycling and exercise areas. Phase II added a new childcare and youth exercise area in addition to lobby, check-in area and locker room renovations. The final phase added a 13,500 square foot building and 70,000 square foot parking lot.

Gillis Gilkerson also oversaw the installation of a new natatorium which now houses a 3,900 square foot family pool area and five-foot deep swimming pool. The 1,700 square foot entryway to the new building offers a vestibule, lobby and gallery with additional seating and congregation space. During all construction phases, the YMCA was able to remain fully operational for members and the public.
