

PROVIDENT STATE BANK

EASTON & SALISBURY, MARYLAND

Provident State Bank hired Gillis Gilkerson to construct their first Salisbury-based bank branch located at 1105 Mount Hermon Road. Led by Project Manager Don Murray and Superintendent Bill Schiavo, Gillis Gilkerson gutted the +/- 2,487 square foot building and delivered a timely and cost effective renovation.

Gillis Gilkerson's scope of work included the addition of glass walls and a rooftop cupola. The building also features a new façade complete with a blue metal roof and white trim to enhance its curb appeal. The interior is equipped with a new teller pod and an updated ATM with image deposit. The new building and business model allows associates to help all customers execute efficient banking transactions.

Provident State Bank also partnered with Gillis Gilkerson to design their new branch office in Easton, Maryland. The construction firm's scope of work encompassed the creation of glass-enclosed offices, new seating areas, a convenience bar with freestanding furniture and a large community conference room equipped with the latest video conferencing and webinar technology.

"We had a great experience working with Don and Bill from Gillis Gilkerson on this project. They were great communicators and kept the job on schedule, so we were able to open when expected."
